July 18, 2024

LJB has acquired Grantham & Associates, Inc., located in Garland, Texas—marking LJB’s third acquisition in the past seven months.

Grantham has been providing quality professional services to clients throughout the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex since 2002. Their team brings expertise in many facets of civil engineering and surveying, including land development, water & wastewater, transportation and trail design, drainage and floodplain, as well as petroleum pipeline engineering.

The firm is well respected for its focus on improving communities, providing exceptional service, and investing in long-term relationships. Grantham’s current clients will continue to work with the same team they know and trust, while also having access to additional support from LJB’s diverse service offerings and staff located in 20 states across the country.

Bruce Grantham, P.E., President of Grantham, said, “It was clear from our first conversation that LJB was completely aligned with our culture. Both firms are focused on developing our staff’s unique abilities, promoting teamwork and committing to integrity without compromise. I’m confident that our partnership will enhance our ability to meet our clients’ ever-expanding needs.”

Rod Sommer, CEO of LJB, said, “Bruce and his team have built long-standing relationships with many marquee public and private clients in the Metroplex. The firm’s infrastructure services are also the perfect complement to LJB’s existing Houston office, which has been focused on structural engineering and safety services since opening in 2014. Thrilled to be partnering with the Grantham team and excited to be expanding in one of the fastest growing regions in the nation.”
