Atwell Acquires SEI Engineering, Inc.

Natick, MA (January 22, 2025) – Atwell, a full-service consulting, engineering, and construction services firm serving the real estate & land development, power & renewable energy, and oil & gas markets, expanded in the Southeast with the acquisition of SEI Engineering, Inc. (SEI).

Based in in Marietta, Georgia, SEI was founded in 1999 by Chad Epple. With numerous clients across public and private sectors, the company’s projects include several nationally recognized developments (for example, Serenbe), mixed-use developments, educational facilities, public transportation facilities, commercial/industrial complexes, public parks, recreational facilities, and aviation.

“The team at SEI is thrilled to add our experience and unique knowledge base to the already impressive Atwell team,” said Chad Epple, President of SEI. “Our continued success has come from providing exceptional designs on time and within budget, coupled with positive partnerships with clients. We are committed to meeting and exceeding client expectations, which is a key attribute we share with Atwell.”

“We look forward to the integration of SEI’s skills and connections to a rapidly growing market,” said Ron Waldrop, Senior Vice President at Atwell. “We have made significant investments in the region in the last few years, and the addition of SEI is an important step forward for us in meeting the needs of existing and future clients in the Southeast.”

Morrissey Goodale, a specialized management consulting and research firm exclusively serving the architecture, engineering, and environmental consulting industries, advised Atwell in the transaction.
